

Safer Sailing with Sterling

After a good day out on the water, the last thing you want to think about is locking up. Sadly, thieves know this too! Right now boat crime is at a record high, and it's getting worse. Fortunately, it's easy to keep burglars at bay with a little help from Sterling.

Press Release

Lock Up Dinghies & Outboards

Small outboards are one of the most commonly stolen items from boats. With a high resale value, and easily portable, they are an obvious temptation for thieves and are costly to replace. But taking it off every night can be a pain in the neck – and the back! Instead, lock it in place with Sterling Link & Lock cables and a good-sized corrosion-resistant marine padlock. Tough braided steel cables with a protective vinyl sleeve, security cables are the perfect way to ensure your outboard stays exactly where it's meant to be.

Secure Sheds, Lockers & Hatches

Once you've put away your equipment you want to make sure it's protected. Security cables are just as good inside a boatshed, where they can be used to lock kit down, or to join it together to make it cumbersome to move. But remember that deterring a thief can be as simple as a good lock on the door! Fitting a tough Sterling padlock and a hasp & staple can mean the difference between an easy target and left well alone.

All Sterling products are made to offer excellent quality at great value prices, meaning that staying safe won't be a strain on the pocket. For more information on Sterling's extensive ranges of security equipment, why not visit www.sterlinglocks.com or call 0113 250 3603. ENDS

Top Tip: Security is as strong as the weakest point. This means there's no point using a tough cable if you put a cheap lock on it! When protecting expensive items like engines, think about how much it will cost you to replace - and then get the best value Sterling security you can.
