

Beat the Boating Blues

Stay Safe with Sterling

Press Release

Messing about in boats is fun, but it's on-shore when the blues can really bite. When everything's safely stored away, out of sight and out of mind, that's the time when it's most vulnerable to opportunistic thieves. The solution is to keep a very high level of visible security in place, with help from Sterling Locks.

Burglars are on the look out for a job that will be a quick in and out. The way to put them off is to have visible security that they know will slow them down. It starts on the outside with a good hasp and staple coupled with a weather proof padlock.

Linking and locking items together provides extra security, should an enterprise thief manage to get past the door. A good ground or wall anchor is easy to fit. This neat bit of security kit lets you loop or chain together a variety of items, making them all a challenge to 'lift'. Any burglar will know it's easier to look for a softer target than try and take on that much of a job.

To secure this boathouse, the following products were used:
