Keeping things safe and sound

Theft in rural areas is always a major concern. Stocking up on a good range of hardwearing security products will help to secure equipment and reduce unwanted access, limiting accidents and theft.

The Link&Lock range from Sterling provides a tough security solution in rural areas. The range includes strong and flexible security chains and cables. All items are long lasting, robust and weather resistant making them the ideal heavy-duty security solution for use outdoors.

For securing everything from trailers to equipment stores a solid lock and security chain or cable is just the answer. The Sterling range has chains of tough Boron steel and a 'Sold Secure' option for added peace of mind. Available in a range of lengths, the chain is also ideal for securing stables, gates and barn doors.

Alternatives to chains are braided steel security double loop and locking cables. Cables can be fed through anything from the rungs of ladders to tacks and racks. Combined with a Sterling heavy-duty padlock, this will provide a tough security solution. For the ultimate padlock choice, look out for the Sterling Armoured Padlock with solid brass body, hardened steel casing and shackle and anti-drill cylinder.

For the complete security solution, the new Sterling security anchors provide the fixing for cables and chains to keep items permanently in place. Bolted to the floor or wall this strong steel anchor has anti-tamper bolts to resist attack from any uninvited visitor.

As well as guarding against theft, all of these security solutions help to prevent accidents and children from making mischief.

The Link&Lock range from Sterling is available through independent DIY and hardware stockists nationwide. For more information call Phoenix Security Products Ltd on 0113 250 3603.
